

It was not the best of times in the South Territory.

The Winds from the North had not arrived.

The People and Critters were stirring and unrestful.

Although their faith in Saint Nicholas was still strong.

The Hot days in the Sun had blown away the cold wind.

The Reindeer and all their companions were long gone.

The list of the Good and The Bad.

It had not dissapeared.

The Will of the Tree's to grow young and bear flowers was stong.

Cocoa and Coffee

Also sugars and stories.

Were being crafted.

It takes very much for Saint Nicholas to get up out of his seat.

The faith of strong children is enough.

They work hard and behave

All year long.

The day Christmas comes, We all recieve gifts.

A Cold Breeze

A moment with a snowman.

A Hot Drink Late at night.

A warm moment in the Morning.

It is enough for all in one night to Belive Santa Claus is Well.

In the North Pole.

" Oh goodness it's hot!"

The climate in the south, the territory beneath the North Pole.

It was very hot for a reindeer.

This reindeer's name, his name was Rudolph.

"I'm very grateful, I have plenty to eat this season."

"How is the reindeer like me is supposed to go fetch Santa Claus?"

It was very hot.

The time was changing.

Naturally Rudolph the Reindeer.

Busy in season.

"The pine cones looking scarce down here!"

"I know there's more up north!" Exclaimed Rudolph.

"I believe and I know! Santa Claus is going to come here soon."

The wind was blowing and the sun beamed down.

There were Witnesses Rudolph in his faith!

The Sun did witness "What should we put in the path of Rudolph the Reindeer?"

"I will play tricks on the Rudolph the Reindeer!"

"I am the summer heat and you want me to go away!"

Rudolph could hear this trickery taking place.

It was not uncommon for the tricksters of the Sun! To find a way faith in Santa Claus!

"You get out of here you little devil!"

"I've had enough for your games!"

"I know when she's coming and you're no one to take away Christmas from me!"

The spirit of the North resting in the mountains, found it safety in the skies.

He overheard.

"I hear you both!"

"I hear you Rudolph and I hear you as well Trickster."

"I am the great wind of the North!"

"Ho! Ho! Ho! the weather has not changed. This is not a curse but a test to Faith."

"I will listen to both of you high in the sky."

"I promised the weather will change and the cold will come upon you!"

"Rudolph from now on your nose will be red with the promise of winter!"

" Today I promise you Trickster, to a bear witness on the Bad and the good of boys and girls."

For the great Saint Nicholas.

And it was done.

Rudolph the Reindeer from the south who was headed north to seek Saint Nicholas.

His nose was turned red.

The trickster was under enchantment with the promise of relief from the blistering Heat!

The great winter wants to come upon the Americas.

"Rudolph you are very faithful reindeer!"

"Round up some more to reindeer that believe and have faith so I may set a path for you!"

"Prepare for the season and Merry Christmas!" Said the North Wind.

Jonathan Olvera is an emerging voice in contemporary literature, known for his evocative storytelling and richly developed characters. With a passion for exploring themes of identity and belonging, he captivates readers through his unique blend of realism and introspection. Jonathan's works, including [insert notable works if you have any], have received acclaim for their lyrical prose and emotional depth. When he's not writing, he enjoys [insert hobbies or interests], drawing inspiration from the world around him. Jonathan currently resides in [insert location], where he continues to craft stories that resonate with a diverse audience.

Jonathan Olvera is a passionate writer and storyteller based in Phoenix Arizona. With a background in Literature and Journalism, he has always been drawn to the power of words and their ability to connect people across cultures and experiences. Jonathan Olvera's work often explores themes of national identity, resilience and love, reflecting a deep understanding of the human condition.

Jonathan Olvera earned His degree in GED from A Transitional School and has since contributed to various literary journals and online platforms. His debut novel, The Crusades in AZ, received Online attention, establishing him as a fresh voice in contemporary literature. In addition to fiction, Jonathan olvera enjoys writing essays and short stories that delve into Engineering, Traditions and Holidays.

When not writing, He can be found hiking, painting, or volunteering, always seeking inspiration from the world around him. Jonathan Olvera believes that every story has the power to change perspectives, and He is dedicated to sharing these narratives with readers everywhere.